DIVERSITY CREDIT PROPOSAL

Presented by Marisa Silva on behalf of the Provost's Diversity Council
INTRODUCTION

In a memo outlining his vision for UNM dated June 28, 2012, incoming President Robert Frank addressed the Board of Regents and UNM’s Leadership Team with a cautionary statement: “The future will happen whether we act or not.” For UNM, this future entails confronting difficult economic realities while embracing the state’s historic and present-day demographics. Complex local and national, as well as global, politics pose daunting challenges, but also open the door for UNM to grow and develop in exciting and unprecedented ways. It is a well-documented fact that students whose college courses include experiences in diversity have better engagement, retention, and graduation rates than their similarly located peers who lack such experiences (Kuh 2005; Ibarra 2001; Martinez 2009). Numerous research-based studies examining the impact of diversity on students and educational outcomes have produced extensive evidence that diversity has a positive impact on all students, minority and majority (Smith et al. 1997).

To better respond to shifting demographics, nearly every one of UNM’s peer institutions in the Southwest, along with the most well-recognized institutions nationally, have implemented diversity requirements into their degree requirements and/or core curricula. For example, Arizona State University requires three separate diversity courses for all undergraduates and Texas A & M requires two courses. This oversight may not only hamper the graduation rates of our students, but it may also disadvantage our students vis-à-vis our national peers as they enter a global labor market that increasingly seeks students well versed in the issues and ethical considerations involved in working with diverse communities.

Table 1 shows peer institutions approved by the HED and used for IPEDS comparisons that require diversity credits for the completion of a bachelor’s degree. The vast majority of universities in the southwest region require credits in diversity. UNM is not among them.
RATIONALE

UNM is the state’s flagship institution for academic research, teaching and service. As a Research I university where the number of Hispanics (37%) is nearly equal to the number of Anglos (38%), UNM also serves a significant number of Native American (11%) students as well as Asian American (3%) and African American (2%) students. In fact, over 60% of the undergraduate population comes to UNM from an underrepresented racial or ethnic group and the majority of UNM students are female (57%) (see Table 2, below). However, there are alarming race-gender gaps in graduation rates. While the overall six year graduation rates for all UNM undergraduates is 45%, it is even lower among Native American, Black and Hispanic students, ranging from 22%-43% respectively (See Table 3, below).

The Mission Statement of UNM lists its first strategic priority as to “foster a vital climate of academic excellence that actively engages all elements of our community in an exciting, intellectual, social, and cultural life” (I). According to the Mission Statement UNM must strive to “Develop a sense of campus community that supports the success of all students, faculty, and staff by engaging them in an active and diverse intellectual life” (I.D.). In fact, diversity and inclusion are cited either implicitly or explicitly in every stated objective and tactic for strategic direction. Most significantly, the Mission Statement directs UNM to “advance the interests and aspirations for New Mexico and its people” (II). The addition of this requirement will enhance the deep and engaged learning that can have a dramatic effect on graduation rates.

For underrepresented students, as well as for all students who come to UNM as undergraduates, college represents a time of formative personal and social identity development (Gurin, Dey, Hurtado, and Gurin 2002). Yet while diverse populations contribute to student development, the benefits of diversity are not automatic and do not simply occur from a diverse campus. Rather, educators must work in intentional ways to increase educational benefits for students and for the institution (Milem, Chang, and Antonio 2005).

To this end, it is imperative that students demonstrate critical literacy pertaining to the dynamics of diversity and inclusion by race, gender, class, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion, and disability in the U.S. and global context. It is also important that UNM’s curriculum reflect values that demonstrate the university’s commitment to diversity. The proposed university-wide 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement speaks directly to this need.

BACKGROUND OF PROCESS AIMED AT ADOPTING DIVERSITY REQUIREMENT

In 2007 a proposal for a graduate level diversity requirement was brought before the faculty senate. The Committee on Graduate Studies voted against the proposal to add a diversity requirement to graduate degree requirements. A memo justified the Committee’s decision to leave diversity to each individual department to implement by citing already existing workshops that addressed issues of diversity on campus. The memo also expressed concerns that an undue burden would be placed on graduate students by the addition of credit hours to degree requirements.

Although the Committee on Undergraduate Studies at that time discussed adding a diversity requirement to the undergraduate curriculum, no vote was taken.

In May 2012, the UNM Provost Diversity Council Curriculum Committee (Co-chaired by Nancy Lopez, Michelle Kells 2011-12; Nancy Lopez & Glenabah Martinez 2012-2013) submitted to Provost Chaouki Abdallah a memo outlining a 3-credit university-wide requirement to be called “U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion.” A solid semester’s worth of research, discussion, and debate resulted in the recommendation by this Committee that a 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement be implemented into the UNM undergraduate curriculum for the benefit of all UNM students. Courses meeting this requirement would be designed with a substantive focus on understanding race, class, gender, ethnicity, sexual orientation, religion and disability in the U.S. and/or global context.

The current proposal differs from the 2007 proposal in two primary ways: (1) it focuses solely on undergraduates; and (2) it does not add credits to existing degree requirements.

INSTITUTIONAL LOGISTICS, SUPPORT, & PARTNERSHIPS

Though each UNM undergraduate will earn 3-credits to satisfy the U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion university-wide requirement, this requirement will not add additional credits hours to the existing core curriculum or degree-granting programs. To satisfy the requirement, students will take a minimum of one 3-credit course in either (a) the core curriculum; or (b) the courses offered by their respective degree-granting departments. Courses that satisfy the U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement can “double-count” for major/minor degree requirements.

It needs to be noted, however, that the ease with which students can fulfill the proposed 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity requirement does not diminish the University’s responsibility to participate on all levels to make UNM a truly diverse educational setting. A seminal report referenced in the “Rationale” section of this proposal, “Making Diversity Work on Campus: A Research Based Perspective,” stresses the importance of a university-wide approach that includes a basic set of principles that are understood by administration, faculty, and staff as well as students (Milem, Chang, and Antonio 2005). Ultimately, as will be examined in the “Learning Outcomes” section of this proposal, diversity as a stated goal only becomes realized when its effects are felt and understood both in- and outside the classroom. The 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity requirement provides an important step toward the realization of this important outcome, but it will not be effective in its pedagogical goal of transforming culture, nor in its pragmatic outcome of increasing student retention and graduation rates without the backing of administrative vision and leadership. Rather than view “diversity” as a burden, faculty must want to develop new courses and explore issues of social relevance within their existing course content. Thus, a faculty incentive program, funded by the administration, must provide extra compensation for faculty who bring innovation to the classroom. The Diversity Council Curriculum Committee strongly believes that monetary incentives and/or course releases to faculty that have already developed these courses and will work with those departments that are working toward establishing these courses will ensure the cooperation of faculty in creating, adequately preparing, and/or modifying existing course listings to meet the 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion undergraduate requirement. To this end, the Diversity Council Curriculum Committee will work in cooperation with UNM faculty and administration to facilitate the development of courses, both in general education and special topics, that support UNM’s values and its mission concerning diversity and inclusion as reflected in UNM’s curriculum and public face.

Certain campus initiatives are already scheduled to dovetail with the implementation of the U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement. The Writing Across Communities (WAC) Initiative, scheduled to be piloted in Fall 2013, will incorporate critical literacy as it pertains to issues of power, diversity and difference by race, class, gender, sexuality, and ethnicity in U.S. society and beyond as key learning outcomes.
A newly envisioned Freshman Learning Program will include reading and writing that explore issues of diversity and identity and can be used to satisfy the 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement.

Many existing courses that focus substantively on issues of diversity and inclusion by race, class, gender, sexual orientation, religion/spirituality, ethnicity, and disability in U.S. and/or global societies will satisfy the U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement. A “Listing of Courses that Fulfill the 3-Credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion Requirement” is attached.

Members of the Diversity Council as well as other resources on campus specializing in diversity will be made available to assist departments as well as individual faculty with the important work of modifying existing courses and envisioning and developing new course offerings. The Office of Equity and Inclusion will facilitate resources and serve as a hub for the exchange of information across disciplines and programs. The Diversity Council will work with the Registrar’s Office, University Advisement Center as well as Student Services to facilitate the implementation of this requirement. Africana Studies, Native American Studies, Chicana/o, Hispana/o, & Mexicana/o Studies, and Asian American Studies as well as The Feminist Research Institute and Women Studies are committed to assisting in cross-listing courses and/or helping individual faculty members to address relevant learning outcomes in the development of courses that strive to meet this requirement. Course-buyouts and/or extra compensation should be made available to faculty charged with assisting departments in designing and implementing courses (both in and outside of the classroom) that would meet the learning objectives of the proposed requirement. Cluster hiring in these areas (race, class, gender, religion, disability) should also be considered a strategic priority that can help transform and buttress cross-disciplinary fertilization and interdisciplinary dialogue at UNM.

TRANSFER OPTIONS

Students transferring to UNM from other institutions may petition to apply credits received from previous coursework toward the fulfillment of the 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement. Students seeking to apply for transfer credit should submit course syllabi or course descriptions to the Diversity Council Curriculum Committee to demonstrate fulfillment of the requirement. The Diversity Council Curriculum Committee will work collaboratively with student advisors to establish course equivalents.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Current research and data suggest that culture shifts begin with conversations that ultimately lead to programming designed to close the race-gender gap in graduation rates at the undergraduate level. Following extensive research gathered on behalf of the University of Michigan in its defense of its affirmative action policies before the U.S. Supreme Court, Jeffrey Milem, Mitchell Chang, and Anthony Antonio (cited in the “Rationale” section of this proposal) argue for “a conception of diversity as a process toward better learning rather than as an outcome—a certain percentage of students of color, a certain number of programs—to be checked off a list.” As a preface to discussing Learning Outcomes, it is important to note that these researchers argue convincingly that diversity must be “engaged” in the service of learning, ranging from recruiting a compositionally diverse student body, faculty, and staff; to developing a positive campus climate; to transforming curriculum, co-curriculum, and pedagogy to reflect and support goals for inclusion and excellence” (Milem, Chang, & Antonio 2005). To this end, UNM is well on its way. The demographic make-up of the campus, combined with recent hires ethnically diverse hires, pave the way for a culture shift reflected by the curriculum.

The stated aim of the 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement is to promote a broad-scale understanding of the dynamics of power, inequality, oppression/resistance, and inclusion that affect individuals as well as nations. It is expected that leadership from the Faculty Senate, in consultation with the Diversity Curriculum Committee, will create conditions under which departments may engage faculty in developing and refining a set of Diversity Learning Outcomes. It is further expected that the curricular shift necessitated by this requirement will engender constructive conversations among the various units, departments, and programs that make up each college across the university, as well as self-reflection via constructive conversations on topics that range from the ideological to the pragmatic.

The following key learning outcomes apply to students who have successfully fulfilled the 3-credit university-wide U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement:

- Demonstrate critical literacy and ethics pertaining to the dynamics of diversity and inclusion by race, gender, class, sexual orientation, ethnicity, religion/spirituality and disability in the U.S. and/or global context;
- Understand the dynamics of inequality, oppression, and resistance for marginalized groups in local and global societies and how those dynamics shape individual and community experiences;
- Communicate an understanding of the ways in which race, ethnicity, religion/spirituality, and/or gender inequality is socially constructed and politically implemented and maintained; and
- Demonstrate an ability to view issues from multiple perspectives as well as analyze, evaluate, and interpret one’s own history and position in contemporary U.S. society as well as in a global context.

A comprehensive study conducted by a recognized peer institution on the positive learning outcomes of diversity and inclusion, which includes sections on qualitative methods and analysis, can be found in “Agencies of Change: Faculty Leadership in Initiating and Sustaining Diversity at the University of Arizona,” a report authored by Jeni Hart, Lindy Brigham, Mary Good, Barbara Mills, and Jan Monk and submitted to Rutgers University as part of the Re-affirming Action: Designs for Diversity in Higher Education grant funded by the Ford Foundation in 2005. That report, appended to this proposal in its entirety, provides evidence of how faculty at the University of Arizona “worked toward change, specifically toward creating a more diverse, fair, and hospitable campus climate” (Hart, Brigham, Good, Mills, & Monk 2005). Models from this study can be adapted for study at UNM and to track learning outcomes of the 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement.

ASSESSMENT OF LEARNING OUTCOMES

The Diversity Council will collaborate with the Office of Institutional Research to track the success of students who fulfill the U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement. Such tracking will examine the retention and six-year undergraduate graduation rates of students by race (race by gender and race by class) before and after the implementation of this requirement. Student evaluation forms will be used to assess student responses to courses that fulfill the U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement. The Diversity Council is committed to working with the Faculty Senate toward issues of compliance, particularly as those issues impact retention and graduation rates among underrepresented student groups.

INCREASING GRADUATION RATES & PROVIDING CRITICAL STRATEGIC KNOWLEDGE FOR THE TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY

Less than half (45%) of all students who attend UNM graduate with bachelor’s degrees after six years. As previously mentioned, the demographic breakdown of graduation rates indicates an alarming race-gender gap that needs to be eliminated (see Table 3, above). It is time that our curriculum reflect our values and commitment to diversity learning outcomes as a way of improving graduation rates for all our students. As a public university UNM has a moral commitment to create innovative and transformation change that can create a positive experience for all of our diverse students. Moreover, the addition of this requirement will also make all of our graduates competitive in the global labor market place where diversity is valued.

Diversity learning is a key factor in contributing to high impact student engagement, which has been shown to result in a significant improvement in graduation rates (Kuh 2012; Ibarra 2001; Martinez 2009). Key knowledge, which is the subject of courses specified by the U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement, will prepare UNM students to lead productive lives in an increasingly diverse society—whether in New Mexico or in another part of the world.

It is significant to note that the overwhelming majority of peer institutions in the Southwest region treat diversity with a core curriculum and/or general education diversity requirement (see “Peer Institution Diversity Requirement Data”). The models from these institutions incorporate studies of diversity in community, nation, and world. The context for understanding is historical, cultural, theoretical, and service-learning oriented.

Research along with compelling data show that diversity is a process. UNM lags behind other peer institutions in the Southwest region as one of the only Higher Education Department and IPEDS institutions in the Southwest that has yet to implement a diversity requirement.
CONCLUSION

UNM serves students in a state with the highest percentage of Latinos (46%) and the fourth largest percentage of Native Americans (10%) in the nation. Situated in a majority minority state, the UNM community boasts nearly equal numbers of Hispanics and Anglos along with rising numbers from other ethnic communities and a campus where the majority of the students are female. Upon graduation, these students, as well as all UNM students, must be able to compete and thrive in an increasingly complex labor market. In other words, UNM must prepare students to serve in the local, national, and global workforce. Valuing U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion will prepare UNM students for successful careers as engineers, physicists, psychologists, teachers, artists, lawyers, medical doctors, policy makers, criminal justice administrators, media specialists, and business leaders. The future leaders of our city, state, nation, and global economy expect and deserve no less.

Most significantly, the curricular inclusion of the proposed 3-credit university-wide U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement will reflect UNM’s commitment to the core values of its stated mission.

Implementing a 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement is a strategic opportunity and a step toward a cultural shift in which diversity and excellence are inextricably linked. Does the university have the political will to—as President Frank’s vision suggests—face its future? If so, the 3-credit U.S. & Global Diversity and Inclusion requirement might be viewed proudly in 2020 as the first step in a process that enabled UNM to begin a meaningful and high-impact effort toward ensuring the success of all its students and redefining the public face of a vibrant and robust university community.

To Whom It May Concern:

As a student within the Master of Public Health and Doctor of Medicine programs at UNM, I have a rather unique view of academic life at our university from both a graduate and professional standpoint in health sciences. It is this dual-nature that has driven me to both learn readily and teach emphatically, so that I may help to ensure a supportive environment for all students at UNM, regardless of age, nationality, race, or creed.

Throughout my high school and early college years, I volunteered in academic and administrative institutions around New Mexico because I had a strong interest in being involved with my communities. I have held positions in student body governments, community associations, and even Congressional offices. I feel that now, as a graduate-level student, I have the opportunity to apply my skills in assisting and representing my peers more readily than ever before.

I am applying for a position through GPSA because I want to improve the graduate and professional student community, while supporting driven individuals in their early careers. Given my academic path, I believe that I would be able to speak for both graduate and professional students fairly and passionately, and I could help to promote the greater goals of our institution.

If needed, I can happily discuss my goals or answer any questions in greater detail. I can be reached via e-mail at ibelovar@unm.edu or cell phone at (505) 417-2526. Thank you for your time and consideration, and I hope to hear from you soon.

Sincerely,

Ioan Belovarski

TOTAL APPROPRIATION REQUEST AMOUNT:  $425.48
APPROPRIATION DETAIL SHEET
Organizations need to attend the Legislative Finance Committee Meeting to present their appropriation request. Please round the total price(s) for each line-item to the nearest whole dollar.
Last fiscal year (2011-2012), Katie Richardson, past GPSA President, agreed to pay the differential tuition for Anderson rates for Japji Hundal out of the GPSA budget. This was determined to work within the GPSA budgeted amount for salaries due to savings elsewhere. At the same time, Japji decided to opt out of GPSA paying for insurance since it was being covered by his other assistantship.

Although Japji’s contract indicated that 6 hours/semester would be covered by GPSA and he opted out of the insurance, only the regular graduate tuition payments were applied to his account in the amount of $1,595.34/semester, leaving the differential tuition of $952.20/semester unpaid. In addition, it was discovered that even though a student opts out of insurance on one contract and not the other, the expense automatically gets shared equally, thus $425.48 got charged to GPSA for insurance anyway.

Therefore, this summer after speaking with Japji about the outcome of what actually occurred, I notified OGS to pay the differential for Japji’s Anderson Tuition for 2 semesters, less the $425.48 that was paid for insurance:

Fall 2011 - $952.20
Spring 2012 - $526.72 ($952.20 less $425.48)

Hopefully, this clarifies things.
If you have any questions, please let me know. Thank you! Yvette
