COMMUNITY ANNOUNCEMENTS

A MESSAGE FROM UNITED GRAD WORKERS

URGENT: After the New Mexico Public Employee Labor Relations Board settled all questions pertaining to our bargaining rights and the scope of our bargaining unit in our favor at the beginning of this month, UNM and the union-busting Holcomb Law Office have, yet again, undertaken measures to stall our certification process and contract negotiations. This time, they are filing an appeal to the labor board's decision with the district court as well as a "stay" on the card count in order to avoid bargaining at the same time. This development comes at a time that rent in Albuquerque is spiking disproportionately to the rest of the country and grad workers are continuing to put off medical or dental care due to out-of-pocket costs. Please visit our Action Network petition to send a letter to the Board of Regents to urge them to stop this process.

It is imperative that we keep organizing and signing up our colleagues in preparation to bargain. Take our bargaining survey and encourage your colleagues to do the same. Like the attempts that came before, this appeal is only delaying the inevitable. We will continue researching and reaching out to our unit in order to build our ideal contract.

Every day around the world many people are forced to flee their homes to escape persecution and violence. These newcomers often lose everything and have to start their lives all over again in the United States. Are you interested in helping refugees and immigrants who resettle in the United States? Do you want to understand more about refugees and immigrants and the challenges they face? You can play an important role in helping newcomers adjust to their new lives here in New Mexico.

If you are considering graduate school in one of the social sciences, medical school, law school, or a career in the fields of mental health, law, human services, or education, then this experience will be valuable for you. The Health & Social Inequalities courses offer an excellent opportunity to acquire experience teaching and advocating with refugees and immigrants, and working with other community members, organizations, and service providers to apply knowledge on the social determinants of health to real world situations WHILE ALSO EARNING COURSE CREDIT.

These courses focus on learning about the experiences, mental health, and sociocultural perspectives on health of African, Afghan, Iraqi, Syrian, Palestinian, Mexican, and Central American refugees and immigrants. The courses provide students with the opportunity to work together with newcomers to address social inequities in education, housing, employment, health care, safety, resources, money, and power, which contribute to increasing health disparities and distress. In addition to helping families get the community resources they need, students participate in innovative Learning Circles which will include one-on-one tutoring and cultural exchange between students and newcomers so that students and newcomers can learn from each other.

The courses are connected to the Refugee and Immigrant Well-being Project (rwp.unm.edu), which involves community-based mental health intervention research to better understand the challenges faced by newcomers in the United States and the role advocacy, learning, social support, and social change can play in their mental health and well-being.

We are looking for hard-working students who want to make a difference in their community.

This opportunity requires a 2-semester commitment (Spring 2022 & Summer 2022).

The course is called Health and Social Inequalities - Community Research and Action with Refugees and Immigrants and involves three courses:

SOC 346 (Health & Social Inequalities I), SOC 347 (Health & Social Inequalities II), and SOC 398 (Health & Social Inequalities Lab). These courses are cross-listed as ANTH 340 and PSY 450. The courses include either 3 credits in the Spring + 6 credits in the Summer = 9 credits total OR 6 credits in the Spring + 3 in the Summer = 9 credits. They do fulfill Psychology lab requirements for Psychology majors and can be taken for Honors College credit.

Students involved in this course will receive both individual and group supervision and support throughout the two-semester course sequence. The class size will be small (approximately 30 students), so there will be great opportunities for student-instructor interaction and building a strong recommendation for graduate school or future employment. This is your chance to gain invaluable community experience while making a unique contribution to your community.

2022 INTERSECTIONAL QUALITATIVE RESEARCH METHODS INSTITUTE

FOR ADVANCED DOCTORAL STUDENTS

Few training institutes in the United States focus on qualitative research methods and even fewer incorporate discussions regarding the intersections of race, gender, class, ethnicity, and other dimensions of inequity. So we did something about it.

Participate June 26-July 1, 2022

This will be the fifth annual summer doctoral institute. Through daily seminars, small working groups, individual consultations, and interactions with peer colleagues, IQRMI-ADS participants have the opportunity to apply their new skills to enhance the interpretation of their qualitative data analysis. Each year, scholars from around the country find community among participants and faculty, and leave the institute as colleagues, friends, and confidants.

GOALS OF INSTITUTE:

- Use critical race and intersectional perspectives to interpret research
- Enhance qualitative research data analyses, holistic interpretation, and analytic writing
- Provide guidance on the completion of the doctoral degree and professional development strategies to support transition to a postdoctoral/academic position

OUR CORE FACULTY SPECIALIZE IN:

- Promoting economic, social, and educational opportunities for working-class families
- Addressing disparities and inequities in health and mental health
- Contextualizing everyday arts and practice as forms of cultural citizenship

WANT TO SHARE A MESSAGE WITH GRAD STUDENTS?

WE CAN SHARE YOUR MESSAGE WITH ALL GRADUATE & PROFESSIONAL STUDENTS AT UNM

Our team is dedicated to promoting the resources available to Graduate & Professional Students at UNM. If you want us to highlight an event, program, or other resource available to Graduate & Professional Students, please email a request to gpsapr@unm.edu with a brief description and flyer to include in the next newsletter.

No new requests will be accepted for the remainder of this semester. This is the last newsletter to be published by GPSA in the Fall 2021 semester.

WANT TO LEARN MORE ABOUT GPSA?

OUR TEAM IS HERE TO SUPPORT YOU ANY WAY THAT WE CAN! READ OUR FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Why do I have GPSA charge on my bursar's account? Students enrolled in a degree-seeking graduate program at UNM are required to pay a student fee to GPSA. This fee goes to funding UNM programs and organizations and is allocated annually by the Student Fee Review Board. Students who do not pay this fee are not eligible to apply for scholarships or grants through GPSA.

Are new UNM Graduate & Professional Students eligible to apply for grants? Yes. You are eligible to apply for SRG, PDG and NMRC (if being offered in the semester) if you meet the respective grant's requirement. However, you are not eligible to apply for the Graduate Scholarship Fund (GSF) if you are in your first semester.

WANT TO LEARN MORE ABOUT GPSA? CONTINUED

Are grants and scholarships offered every semester? The Student Research Grant (SRG), Professional Development Grant (PDG) and Graduate Scholarship Fund (GSF) are offered in every semester i.e. Fall, Spring and Summer. However, the New Mexico Research Grant (NMRC High Priority and General Priority) are offered only in the Fall Semester.

Can I apply to multiple grants in one grant cycle? Yes, you can apply multiple grants in the same grant cycle, but each grant requires a separate application i.e. Statement of Proposal, Budget sheet and Letter of Recommendation (if required).

Can I utilize my grant award another semester? Yes, you can. The funds which are sought for the event or activity must be utilized within the next, current or previous funding period.

Ask a question. Didn't see your question in our list of FAQs? Submit any questions you have on our website. If your question is urgent or specific, please submit an email directly to the appropriate Committee Chair for a quicker response.
