	Yes (approx. 400 words)
	The narrative outlines broad categories of use (tuition, books, software, professional development)
	The applicant is pursuing a master's degree in Project Management and clearly states a desire to build leadership and strategic planning skills.
	Is the activity/research/project described in detail?
	The narrative is focused on coursework and academic progress rather than a discrete research project, which is acceptable for GSF applications. The applicant also outlines professional development goals like certification workshops and conferences. The applicant shows strong alignment between their academic work, professional aspirations in project leadership, and personal development goals.
	Yes. The narrative makes a clear case for how GSF funding will help the applicant stay enrolled, participate in learning opportunities, and pursue certification or conferences that will enhance employability.
	The applicant connects their story to broader representation by first-generation students, single parents, and those overcoming significant life adversity, showing how their perseverance can inspire others.
	Yes. The funds will go toward tuition, books, software, and professional development. While a full itemized budget is not included, the request is appropriate for a GSF.
	he narrative is clear, personal, and compelling, with a good balance of personal background and future goals.

	lowever, the applicant clearly describes how funding will be used (tuition, books, fees).
	es. The funding directly supports educational progress toward a degree that will allow the oplicant to provide for her family and achieve long-term stability.
	es. Financial assistance will alleviate economic stress, allowing continued enrollment and cus on studies while balancing work and parenting responsibilities.
	es, indirectly. The applicant's story of recovery, resilience, and perseverance serves as an cample of transformation and determination. The degree will also enable her to contribute eaningfully to her community and family's future.
	he requested $1,000 is appropriate for tuition and book expenses, though a detailed

Their proposal is well-written and explains their field of interest, how the money will ben	efit their degree completion, and how they pursued other funding. Student mentioned quite potential uses of GSF funds, but not all were included in the supporting materials.
Assuming GSF funds would be spent on the charges in the screenshot, I recommend the

Their proposal was very heartfelt and well written and it appears they have a strong reason	oning behind pursuing their education. However, their use of funds does not entirely make sen	ise in comparison to the supporting materials they provided. It appears as though the student	has not only received outside funding, but also paid off their account through an ACH payme	ent rather than a loan. It is unclear whether this was from a loan service or was fully paid off	by the student, making the financial need unclear.

	Yes – Clear financial need and use of funds are described. Applicant provides an approximate total tuition cost ($1,680), outlines the gap ($680), and explains how the GPSA funding would be applied.
	Required supporting docs (financial aid details, other funding attempts) included?
	Applicant references other funding applications (Centro de la Raza, GEO, SoE Fellowships, departmental assistantships)
	Applicant is a Ph.D. candidate in the final semester of Nuclear Engineering, working on Generation IV nuclear reactor design—a critical and highly technical field focused on clean energy innovation.
	Emphasizes unique financial and legal constraints faced as an international student:
	Ineligible for most U.S. nuclear-related assistantships due to security clearance restrictions
	Unable to work off-campus, and only earning ~$400/month via grading Actively applying for other scholarships and assistantships to close remaining funding gap Tuition and fees total $1,680 for a single dissertation course, and the requested $1,000 would cover approximately 60% of this, enabling the applicant to complete their program.
	The applicant is in their final semester of a rigorous Ph.D. program and presents a clear, urgent need for tuition assistance. Their financial and legal constraints as an international student are significant and well-articulated, and their academic work aligns with global

	Amount Requested: $1,000
	Word count: Yes, approx. 480
	Background
	Applicant's academic/professional interests clearly stated — pursuing MA in Counseling, aiming for LPCC for children and families
	Financial need explained well — continuous tuition payments, commuting costs ($500/semester gas & parking), limited income
	Other support acknowledged — one prior scholarship covered ¼ of a semester
	Benefits
	Clear use of funds — to offset tuition and parking expenses Tied to degree completion — helps maintain financial stability during practicum and internship Articulates academic and community impact — plans to serve New Mexico children and families
	Composition
	Clear, logical, and concise writing
	Flows smoothly with a personal yet professional tone
101898298	Minor grammar issues, but nothing affecting clarity	27	18	9	54
	$1,000 (Word count: ~500)
	While specific needs are described (commuting costs, parking fees, future rent) Applicant is in their second year of the Master of Arts in Counseling program and is preparing to enter the practicum and internship phase, which often requires significant time commitment and unpaid clinical hours.
	Expresses clear and heartfelt motivation for working with young children and families, inspired by both personal experiences (cousin with Down syndrome) and academic training.
	Demonstrates an understanding of culturally inclusive, strengths-based practices in mental health care and early childhood development.
	Strong alignment with long-term goal of becoming a Licensed Professional Clinical Counselor (LPCC).
	Financial need is clearly described:
	Commuting costs ($500 per semester)
	Anticipated move to Albuquerque (rent, utilities, groceries)
	Past scholarship support covered only a small portion of tuition Limited income (occasional babysitting)
	Applicant presents a realistic and mature view of financial constraints and is proactively seeking support to avoid excessive student loan debt.
	Plans to apply funding directly toward tuition and parking, in line with GSF goals.
	Narrative is personal, well-articulated, and clearly conveys both financial need and academic commitment.

		1
	Amount Requested: $1,000
	Word count: Yes (≈ 480 words)
	Background:
	Applicant clearly states academic focus (Biomedical Engineering) and career goal to advance healthcare technologies such as medical devices and regenerative medicine Financial need is well explained — self-funded, no assistantship, and past semesters fully paid out of pocket
	Details family strain and balancing multiple jobs to afford tuition
	Benefits
	Use of funds clearly stated — tuition, books, software licenses, and research materials Explains how funding will enable completion of degree, participation in research and internships internatipa
	Demonstrates broader impact through future contribution to health equity and innovation
	1
	Composition:
	Proposal flows logically and reads professionally
	Minimal technical jargon; appropriate for general audience
	Strong closing paragraph that links personal story to academic goals
101925199		27	19	9	55
	Financial needs weren't explained enough.
	The applicant didn't clearly explain how this fund will help the applicant complete the degree.
	The composition needs to be enhanced.
101925199		26	17	8	51
	Amount Requested:
	$1,000
	Meets Word Count Requirement?
	Yes (~470 words)
	Budget Template Complete?
	The narrative clearly identifies how funds will be used (tuition, textbooks, software, professional development).
	Academic and Professional Interests:
	Clearly stated. Focus on medical devices, regenerative medicine, and addressing health disparities through biomedical engineering is strong and socially impactful Financial Need:
	Well-documented. Applicant is self-funded, covering tuition and living expenses independently, with limited support from family and part-time work. Demonstrates realistic financial pressure and motivation to remain enrolled.
	Tuition and fees for continued enrollment Educational resources (textbooks, software licenses, research access)
	Professional development (conferences, workshops)
	Academic Progress & Professional Readiness:
	Strong case. Funding will reduce financial stress, improve focus on coursework, research, and internships, and enable participation in collaborative and interdisciplinary projects.
101925199		30	20	10	60
	Applicant recommended for GSF:

	Student proposal is less than the (350) word minimum, totaling less than 200 words.
	betadent proposatis tess than the (650) word minimum, totaling tess than 200 words.
	Justification for Points: No listing of additional funding pursued (did not deduct points for this).
	Points were deducted as I do not believe this proposal flowed logically. There is not a specific mention of GSF nor mention of specific uses of GSF funds. Do not believe the proposal was thoroughly articulated as far as the benefit(s) of funding degree completion. Overall, could
